Youth Peer Support and Training Services Scope of Work

This information was developed based on the Child and Family Treatment and Support Services Provider Manual. Information was adapted to be more plain language. Please refer to the Provider Manual for more details.

Youth Peer Support and Training (YPST) services are formal and informal services and supports provided to young people, who are experiencing social, medical, emotional, developmental, substance use, and/or behavioral challenges. YPST pairs Youth Peer Advocates with young people to provide training and support to them. The purpose is to ensure engagement and active participation of the young person in their treatment and decisions that affect their lives. YPST is provided by a trained and credentialed Youth Peer Advocate who has personal experience as a young person with a social, emotional, medical, developmental, substance use, and/or behavioral challenge, or has received services in any one of the child serving systems (juvenile justice, foster care, special education, or addiction recovery). YPST can be provided in individual and group settings.

Definitions

Youth/young person: Individual under age 21

Parent/Family: Family is defined as the primary care-giving unit and is inclusive of the wide diversity of primary caregivers in our culture. Family is a biological, adoptive or self-created unit of people residing together. They consist of adults and/or young people, with adults performing parental/caregiver duties for the young person/child. Persons within this unit share bonds, culture, practices and a significant relationship. Biological parents, siblings and others with significant attachment to the individual living outside the home are included in the definition of family. For the purposes of this service, “family” is defined as the persons who live with, or provide care to a child and may include a parent, spouse, sibling, children, relatives, grandparents, guardians, foster parents or others with significant attachment to the individual.

Service Provider: Refers to individuals and organizations that provide formal services to young people and their family from all children and family serving systems (mental health, juvenile justice, child welfare, substance abuse treatment, education, health, etc.).

Natural Supports: Natural supports are individuals and resources a family can access “naturally,” independent from formal services. These supports are a significant source of culturally relevant emotional support and caring friendships for young people and their families. Natural supports can be short-term or long-term and are usually sustainable and available to the young person and the family after formal services has ended.
